An Igbo traditional wedding, also known as "Igba Nkwu Nwanyi" (literally "the bride's wine-carrying"), is a vibrant and culturally rich ceremony that marks the official union of a couple in Igbo tradition.

Here's how it goes down:

- 1 Arrival of the groom and presentation of gifts.
- 2 The wine carrying ritual, most symbolic moment is when the bride searches for her groom. Once she finds him, she kneels before him, offers him the palm wine, and he drinks. This signifies her choice and seals their union.
- 3 Parents Blessings, the couple receives blessings from the bride's parents and elders.
- 4 Entertainment begins, music and cultural troupe performances
- 5 Feast and celebration, a grand feast follows, featuring traditional Igbo delicacies like Abacha, Ugba, Pounded yam, Ofe Onugbu (bitter leaf soup), Nkwobi, and palm wine.
- 6 Presentation of the bride, the bride is officially "given" to the groom's family, symbolizing the joining of both families.
